Watson Spence Promotes Accomplished Attorney
Faison Middleton to be the practice's new managing partner

(Albany, Ga.)- After being a part of the Watson Spence law practice for the past six years, Faison Middleton has been asked to serve as the practice's managing partner. His years of dedication to the community and personal excellence in his case load involving civil trial and litigation practices stand out as qualities Watson Spence values in its managing partner's character and work ethic.

Faison received his Bachelor's degree education from Emory University in 1992 and moved on to graduate cum laude in 1995 from Georgia State University College of Law. He then began his career in Atlanta, but left the law firm of McKenna, Long and Aldridge in late 2003 to move back to his hometown of Albany and join Watson Spence.

Middleton serves in many community organizations and on several boards and committees including the Board of Directors of the Albany Area Chamber Commerce, the Board of Trustees of the Albany Museum of Art, President of the non-profit organization Lily Pad Center, Inc., the Dougherty County Rotary Club, as well as many others attends St. Paul's Episcopal church with his family.
